BANTAMS

Male: 620 – 740 g
 Female: 510 – 620 g

As is common with any rumplless breed, the parson's nose or 'Caudal Appendage'

(uropygium) is missing. Foreign breeds like the Barbu d'Anvers has a rumplless version called Barbu du Grubbe. The Barbu d'Uccle has the Barbu d'Everberg as its rumplless version and, even in Japan, there is a Rumplless Yokohama, funny though it may sound, with its long saddle hackle making it feasible. A genetic accident with Old English Game many years ago probably created our own Rumplless Game. The breed, though not popular in the bantam form, is often seen in large fowl.

GENERAL CHARACTERISTICS

MALE

Carriage: Bold and upright.
Type: Body: short and small. Back: steeply sloping. Breast: full and prominent. Wings: large and long. Tail: completely absent, the whole of the lower back being covered with the saddle feather.
Head: Small and tapering. Beak: rather large. Eyes: large and bold. Comb: single, small and thin, upright. Ear-lobes and wattles: fine, small and thin.
Neck: Long and upright; hackle: close and wiry.
Legs and Feet: Legs: strong and of medium length. Thighs: short, round and muscular. Toes: four, long, straight and tapering.
Plumage: Hard and close.

FEMALE

The general characteristics are similar to those of the male, allowing for the natural sexual differences.

COLOUR

Plumage colour is of secondary importance in this breed, and almost any recognized 'Game' colour is acceptable. Face, comb wattles and ear-lobes should be bright red.

BANTAM

Rumpless Game Bantams should follow exactly the large fowl standard.
